

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

EXECUTIONS AGAINST Jaeger, the Caterer, Which Have Not Been Sustained.

The Sheriff has received several executions in the past two weeks against Frederick J. N. Jaeger, caterer and confectioner, Madison Avenue and Fifty-ninth street. The Sheriff has been unable to lay upon anything, as Mr. Jaeger said that the place was owned by his brother-in-law, Mr. Lehmann. The Sheriff it was said, yesterday, has made a formal levy upon Mr. Lehmann's interest in the place under a judgment given by Judge Murphy. The Sheriff was informed that George F. Engel had a number of mortgages on the furniture and fixtures for $100,000. Mr. Jaeger started in business for himself in 1888, and in the spring of 1892 he moved his establishment to 1120 Fifth Avenue, Fifth street and Madison Avenue. It is said he leased it for twenty years at about $25,000 a year. He fitted up the upper portion of the hall with a large private room corner for the confectionery and eating business. Mr. Jaeger has run the establishment at Narragansett Pier for several seasons, and says that his difficulties will be greater.

The Sheriff has closed up the store of Jacob Silverman, dealer in clothing, at 84 East Broadway, on a claim for $204 in favor of A. H. Davis.

Transcript of a judgment from Ithaca was entered in this office yesterday afternoon in favor of Alexander C. Jones, a son of Gisela Jones, Alexander N. Lyman, and Charles H. Blair, as trustees of Mary E. Cornell.

JUDGES NOT NICE TO BE AN ANGEL.

After trying P., Williams Said it was More Excessive than Playing Poker.

John Williams, a tall thin man who looked like a farmer and who was the "angel" of the Adm. burlesque company, was in the Lee Avenue Police Court in Williamsburgh, yesterday, for not having the company's board bill at Mrs. Carnahan's boarding house at 329 Bedford avenue. The company was stranded after a play of an engagement at the People's Theatre in Williamsburgh. It was alleged that Williams guaranteed the board bill. Williams said he was a victim of misplaced confidences. "I owned a lot of hawks in Hoboken," he said, and three weeks ago the Adm. company paid him $1000 for them. "I sold them to the hawks and liked them, and finally Mr. Webb, the manager, got me to put some money in the concern, so I'm going along with them." The Adm. company was stranded with Mr. Williams with a sigh. "Everybody in the company borrowed money from me, for some else in the company even though I was not in the money." Instead of being in the company as the angel, instead of being an angel I was a jester. Why, a man can lose more money in less time, by lacking a show than by playing poker." Justice Goetting held Williams and Manager Webb for examination. Most of the members of the company were in court. Carnahan had them held on credit. Consequently he behaved upon her when she was testifying and scolded at Williams.

THE CORNELL BANQUET TRAGEDY.

Judge Forbes' Judgment at the Crittenden's or His Charge to the Grand Jury.

INHACA, March 10.—Judge Forbes is indignant at the editorial strictures put upon him by a number of newspapers of the State in criticism of his charge to the Grand Jury in the cholera poisoning case. With a dozen of these newspaper clippings in hand, he addressed the bar of this county this afternoon in justification of his charge and in protest against the injustice of the criticism to which he is being subjected. His manner was impulsive and his voice was strong.

He read from a transcript of his remarks to make clear the use of the press, on the ground that his remarks were addressed to the members of the bar.

A meeting of the bar of this county has been called for 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, at the Court House, to listen to a report of a committee of the bar on the subject of the opinion of a Supreme Court Justice's judicial and official action as may seem best in the premises.

FANJOY CLAIMED BY FOUR WIVES.

He Thought He Could Be As He Liked When He Was Released from Prison.

James Fanjoy, a shoe cutter, 42 years of age, was arrested at his home in 784 Grand street, Williamsburgh, yesterday, on a charge of bigamy, and when he is arraigned in the Lee Avenue Police Court to-day four women who claim to be his wives will be present. The warrant against Fanjoy was obtained by Lucy Esturi of No. 81 Elbert street, Brooklyn, who is the woman he married to him two years ago, and who recently learned that he had other wives living.

Fanjoy before his marriage to Lucy Purcell, was engaged to a woman named Anna, and when he had an idea that when he came out of prison he was free to do as he liked.

WHAT POLICE FEARS EQUALIZED.

The Sergeants and Detective Sergeants who were retired on a pension of $800 a year before the Legislature raised the salaries of Sergeants and Detective Sergeants from $1,000 to $2,000 a year are taking steps to secure an equalization of pensions that will enable them to receive the $1,000 a year pension paid to all Sergeants and Detective Sergeants who have been granted pensions. The pensioners and their constituents are in comparison with the Sergeant and Detective Sergeants Joseph Dorsay and Richard King have been appointed a committee to bring the matter to the Legislature.

This committee has drawn up a petition setting forth the services of the pensioners in the dead-habit, East side German, the draft, and other important work, and has sent it to the Legislature for the increase of pension asked.

The committee do not ask for pay back in the case of the pension granted. The committee reports that Superior Court Justice Prynes favors the proposed equalization.

A Practical Woman Suffragist.

Mrs. Augusta Ladogan, who owns a little frame house at 15 Meeker avenue, Williamsburgh, sold it Manchester, a tenant to recover $175 for three months' rent. On account of the absence of Justice Murphy in the Third Circuit Court yesterday the suit was adjourned to April 1. Mrs. Ladogan was interested at the outset.

Justice Murphy ought to be here," she said. "I am a taxpayer and have a right to have my voice heard. Oh, if you could hear how she talks! If women only had a voice public affairs how different things would be! But the day is coming when we will be heard."

Hudson River Driveway.

The Park Commissioners have advertised specifications for the second section of the Hudson River Driveway, which will extend from High Bridge to Dyckman street. Bids will be opened at 11 A. M. on March 30. This section must be completed in 400 working days. The estimated cost is $1,075,000. James Levy said yesterday that he had 450 men employed directly on the first section.
